Here's a few mods, tips, & tricks I did to my WEPS

Posted by MODiFiEDZ - 01 Apr 2012 04:35

Here is a video I uploaded to MODiFiEDZ YouTube channel about some modifications I did to clean, lube & protect the sharpener as well as consistently get mirror polished edges & even hair whittling sharp edges everytime. There's some more Wicked Edge sharpening videos on my channel if you'd like to check them out.

[video size=100 width=640 height=360 type=youtube]

==========

Re: Here's a few mods, tips, & tricks I did to my WEPS

Posted by PhilipPasteur - 07 Nov 2012 10:01

Check this thread starting at #2958

Not 'fridge magnets, but magnets and a bit later thoughts on cleaning them.

Phil

==========

Re: Here's a few mods, tips, & tricks I did to my WEPS

Posted by Billabong - 07 Nov 2012 10:53

PhilipPasteur wrote:

Check this thread starting at #2958

Not 'fridge magnets, but magnets and a bit later thoughts on cleaning them.

Phil

Thanks Phil.

I did a search and found this thread, just wanted to add a post to it.

I have read all the previous posts.

My guess is magnet strength is a priority.

==========

Re: Here's a few mods, tips, & tricks I did to my WEPS

Posted by mark76 - 07 Nov 2012 11:02

My experience with magnets is not very good. Either they're so strong they're almost unusable (and, with knives in the neighbourhood, dangerous). Or they are so weak you need to keep them close to the metal filings. And in that case a cloth works just as well.

==========

Re: Here's a few mods, tips, & tricks I did to my WEPS

Posted by Billabong - 07 Nov 2012 11:09

Thanks Mark, I tried the strong ones.

They have a mind of their own, I think one is now embedded in the wall somewhere.

==========

Re: Here's a few mods, tips, & tricks I did to my WEPS

Posted by mark76 - 07 Nov 2012 14:22

Billabong wrote:

Thanks Mark, I tried the strong ones.

They have a mind of their own, I think one is now embedded in the wall somewhere.

==========