Frequently used threads STICKY

Hi Clay,

Would it be possible to have some sort of "sticky" (whatever this software allows) that would be a list of links to some of the great work that has been done here... to make it easier for people to find?

I ask this because I have posted links to quite a few resources repeatedly, because lots of members apparently have never seen them. I realize that no one really has the time to go through every post on the boards, so consolidating these things in one place would be helpful. When I enter the forum I am directed to "Recent Topics" from there none of the really great stuff from the past is visible after a few weeks.

For example, I have posted links to the Unified grit chart, your wonderful progression photos and stropping photos, Tom's progression blog posts and some of the great work that Ken has done, many times. Each time that I do, lots of folks react as though they have no previous information on them. I understand this because to even link them I have to spend quite a bit of time with your search engine and/or Google to find the links (that is IF I can remember the proper key words before I give up). Now this is just a sample based on a quick recall job, I am sure that there are lots more that I use many, many times and that would be valuable for everyone, if easily accessed.

I would be happy to work with you on this if you need me!

What do you think?

Phil

There's now a link to the wiki under the "Resources" tab of the forum.

I just this a.m. got the ability to upload pictures turned on.

Now to figure out how to use it.
(It's actually not too hard).

My idea is to have a page with a specific topic, with relevant information or posts copied over (or fresh writing) at the top, then links with short descriptions to related information, if appropriate, underneath. The idea being a person with a question or interest, could visit that page and obtain the needed information, then "read on" if they desire.

If that doesn't make sense, or there are other ideas out there... let me know!

Good work Curtis.

Are you going to write something up on the picture upload process, once you have it figured out? I would definitely need detailed instructions...I am sure

Yea, I'm going to create an instruction page for how to post to the wiki, once I get the photos figured out.

We're thinking along the same lines, pulling excerpts from the forum. I don't know about the photo links, but I think they'll have to be reloaded into the wiki. (I tried copying a forum post with a photo link, and it didn't work).

I think, once a format is established, others will start to contribute.

Thanks for doing this Curtis. Now we just need content. We have lots of imaginative folks out there with lots of experience, we just need them to write some of it down.

I played with the WIKI a bit last night. It is pretty easy to use once you know a few of the basics.

Give it a try you guys and gals...
