SOG Twitch II

Posted by pinkfloyd74 - 04 Dec 2012 07:23

With the addition of the new upgraded Ball Joint arms i was finally able to sharpen my SOG Twitch II knife, with an edge that i am happy with. Woo Hoo! I couldnt do this knife before because the standard arms would let the hones hit the body of the knife and the thumb stud. This might help others that couldnt do a certain knife before

Nice job, if you haven't already, consider adding it to the Knife Database .

Thanks Guys,

Trying to post in Database but evidently im missing something, it wont let me post

Here are the knife specs

Blade Length

2.68" x .1"

Steel

AUS 8

HRC

57-58

Settings

Top Holes

22 deg

Will have to get back on the allignment

My progression was 800 to 1600 ceramics. Then 14, 10, 5, 3.5u strops. 100 strokes with each strop would flip strops end for end at 50 so the whole strop would get used instead of only about 2/3 of them being used.

It probably posted... when you submit it, the post is reviewed before it actually shows up.

Very cool, I've done quite a few SOG knives including the Flash series and the recurved Toothlock. I think I have the data for at least the latter of those and all the other name brand knives I've done recently up on the DB now. Clay might need to send me a hat by now

I'm sure I'll run into a Twitch sooner or later, thanks for sharing!

You do have enough for a hat already
Are you ready for one or do you want to stack up more credits for something else? I'll bump the other thread that shows how many credits equals what swag.
